

state jail felony conviction out of Randall County, Texas, for the offense of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. See State v. Carbajal, No. 16,084-B. Based on the Offender Information Detail provided online by TDCJ-CID, it appears petitioner is not currently being held by respondent on this conviction. Moreover, as petitioner was convicted on February 11, 2005 and was sentenced to 2 years confinement for this offense, it is probable that petitioner had already discharged this sentence prior to filing the instant federal habeas application on December 27, 2007. However, as no responsive pleading has been filed verifying that petitioner has discharged his sentence, the Court will consider petitioner's grounds. Petitioner alleges his state jail felony conviction for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle is unlawful because:

1. Petitioner was denied a fair trial as a result of the denial of his right to confront and cross-examine co-defendants;
2. Petitioner was denied effective assistance of trial counsel because counsel failed to:
 - a. investigate the law concerning criminal responsibility;
 - b. interview witnesses for petitioner's defense; and
 - b. argue for the inclusion of a jury charge instruction on the law of parties.
3. Petitioner was denied effective assistance of appellate counsel because counsel failed to:
 - a. raise the above grounds on appeal; and
 - b. did not notify petitioner when his appeal was affirmed, thereby denying petitioner the right to file a petition for discretionary review.

I.
EXHAUSTION OF STATE COURT REMEDIES

Petitioner filed his federal application after the April 24, 1996 effective date of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA). Consequently, the provisions of the AEDPA apply to this case. As relevant here, the AEDPA provides:

(b)(1) An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court shall not be granted unless it appears that—

(A) the applicant has exhausted the remedies available in the courts of the State; or

(B)(i) there is an absence of available State corrective process; or

(ii) circumstances exist that render such process ineffective to protect the rights of the applicant.

(2) An application for a writ of habeas corpus may be denied on the merits, notwithstanding the failure of the applicant to exhaust the remedies available in the courts of the State.

(3) . . .

(c) An applicant shall not be deemed to have exhausted the remedies available in the courts of the State, within the meaning of this section, if he has the right under the law of the State to raise, by any available procedure, the question presented.

28 U.S.C. § 2254. The exhaustion doctrine set forth in section 2254 requires that the state courts be given the initial opportunity to address and, if necessary, correct alleged deprivations of federal constitutional rights in state cases. Castille v. Peoples, 489 U.S. 346, 349, 109 S.Ct. 1056, 1059 (1989). The doctrine serves “to protect the state courts’ role in the enforcement of federal law and prevent disruption of state judicial proceedings.” Rose v. Lundy, 455 U.S. 509, 518, 102 S.Ct. 1198, 1203, 71 L.Ed.2d 379 (1982).

Under our federal system, the federal and state courts are equally bound to guard and protect rights secured by the Constitution. Because it would be unseemly in our dual system of government for a federal district court to upset a state court conviction without an opportunity to the state courts to correct a constitutional violation, federal courts apply the doctrine of comity, which teaches that one court should defer action on causes properly within its jurisdiction until the courts of another sovereignty with concurrent powers, and already cognizant of the litigation, have had an opportunity to pass upon the matter.

Id. (brackets, internal quotation marks, and citations omitted). To have exhausted his state remedies, a habeas petitioner must have fairly presented the substance of his federal constitutional claims to the state courts. Nobles v. Johnson, 127 F.3d 409, 420 (5th Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1139, 118 S.Ct. 1845, 140 L.Ed.2d 1094 (1998). This requires that any federal constitutional claim presented to the state courts be supported by the same factual allegations and legal theories upon which the petitioner bases his federal claims. Picard v. Connor, 404 U.S. 270, 276, 92 S.Ct. 509, 512, 30 L.Ed.2d 438 (1971). Further, in order to satisfy the federal exhaustion requirement, petitioner must fairly present to the highest state court each constitutional claim he wishes to assert in his federal habeas petition. Skelton v. Whitley, 950 F.2d 1037, 1041 (5th Cir.), cert. denied sub nom. Skelton v. Smith, 506 U.S. 833, 113 S.Ct. 102, 121 L.Ed.2d 61 (1992); Richardson v. Procnier, 762 F.2d 429, 431 (5th Cir. 1985); Carter v. Estelle, 677 F.2d 427, 443 (5th Cir. 1982), cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1056, 103 S.Ct. 1508, 75 L.Ed.2d 937 (1983). In the state of Texas, the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin, Texas is the highest court which has jurisdiction to review a petitioner's confinement. Tex. Code Crim. Proc. Ann. art. 44.45 (Vernon 1999). Claims may be presented to that court through an application for a writ of habeas corpus, see Tex. Code Crim. Proc. Ann. art. 11.01 et seq. (Vernon 1999), or on direct appeal by a petition for discretionary review.

Based upon petitioner's federal habeas application and the online information available to the Court, it does not appear, as of this date, that petitioner has presented his claims to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals by way of direct appeal (petition for discretionary review) or by a state habeas application. Therefore, the state's highest court has not had an opportunity to review and determine the merits of petitioner's claims. Consequently, petitioner's claims have not been exhausted and his federal habeas petition is subject to summary dismissal in order that petitioner may present to, and obtain a ruling by, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on his claims. Only after state habeas corpus proceedings are concluded may he raise his claims in this Court by way of a federal petition pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254.

It is the opinion of the undersigned that petitioner has not exhausted his state court remedies through state habeas corpus. Accordingly, as the record now exists, it is the opinion of the Magistrate Judge that the petition must be dismissed for failure to exhaust.

II.
RECOMMENDATION

It is the RECOMMENDATION of the United States Magistrate Judge to the United States District Judge that the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus by a Person in State Custody filed by petitioner JAVIER RODRIGUEZ CARBAJAL be DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE for failure to exhaust state court remedies. Petitioner is advised that dismissal without prejudice does not guarantee petitioner that he will be permitted to prosecute any subsequently filed federal habeas application.
